

Adventures in SciFi Publishing

Bringing you authors of science fiction and fantasy.

- Home
- About Us

Search this site...

Go

Browse: Home / Shows / AISFP 60 - Gary Philips, Doselle Young, Lilith Saintcrow, and Eldon Thompson

AISFP 60 - Gary Philips, Doselle Young, Lilith Saintcrow, and Eldon Thompson

By Shaun Farrell • August 20, 2008

In our first Comic-Con episode, we present Gary Phillips and Doselle Young of The Darker Mask, along with Lilith Saintcrow and Eldon Thompson.

Show Notes:

We will have two episodes full of content recorded at Comic-Con, and in this episode we present the first three interviews. As a side note, we have also been named a finalist for the Parsec Award in the writing-related podcast. Very exciting.

So, as for the interviews, Doselle Young and Gary Phillips discuss The Darker Mask, a new anthology of original short fiction featuring heroes of color. This book looks really, really good. So check it out.

Lilith Saintcrow joins us to discuss her Dante Valentine series, her new Jill Kesmet books, her writing methods, and some great advice for new writers. We also narrowly evade some stormtroopers, but our Comic-Con savvy won out in the end.

Eldon Thompson ends this episode with a bang, breaking down how he twists fantasy tropes in his trilogy. He also talks about screen writing and his various screen writing projects, which include a script based on the books of Terry Brooks.